Conflict of Interest and Recusal Policy

A conflict of interest can arise when a set of circumstances creates a risk that an Evaluation Committee member's professional judgment or actions will be unduly influenced by a secondary, private interest and might lead to an excess benefit transaction or what could be perceived to be a corruptive practice. The Challenge requires all Evaluation Committee members to disclose any and all real or potential conflicts of interest as soon as they are known and to openly withdraw from voting on any issues or decisions in which they have conflicts of interest.

Examples of conflicts of interest are:

Current employment at the applicant institution

A relationship with an investigator or individual applying, including (but not limited to):

- Collaborating on a project, book, article, report, or paper within the last 48 months
- Co-editing a journal, compendium, or conference proceedings within the last 24 months
- Having a formal business or professional partnership

A known family or personal friendship that might affect a member's judgment or be seen as doing so by a person familiar with the relationship

Recusal Policy: While reviewing proposals (using the scoring rubric), the Challenge will recuse evaluators from scoring any proposal for which someone from their university/college is the principal investigator or a co-principal investigator. Additionally, it will recuse evaluators from scoring proposals they have identified as one that causes a conflict.

Please select the institution(s) with which you have identified a conflict of interest per the PIT-UN Challenge Conflict of Interest and Recusal Policy from the list above (select all that apply) *
